Chapter 1 by franzi

Addylin was getting for her night out with her friends ivana and willow. addylin wasn't your average popular girl. she had beautiful long red hair and the most perfect freckles. light skin and crystal blue eyes that you couldn't help but stare if you looked. that night she decided she wasn't going to wear here tor up used jeans that she had had gotten rid of in her freshmen year in high school or that old Beatles t-shirt her father gave her in middle school. tonight she was going to look like a new person. she put on the little black dress that every woman had in their closets. the high heels instead of her black boots. as she almost done getting ready ivana and willow arrive in front of her house. they proceed to think the horn ivana being her goofy self yells out "lets go addylin ,anytime before next year" Addylin rushes down the stairs and out the door. she gets in the car and willow notices the new look and curious as to why she is looking different she asked addylin "whats the new look for addylin?" addylin paused as she blacked out for few seconds and she simply said "its just a very special night for me ,you only turn eighteen once." willow notice the hesitation on addylin face, but just ignored it. Ivana drove off and addylin thought to herself of what's to come when she receives her powers tonight for she has yet to tell her friends that her family is a very well known as witches and that she is to become one of them tonight. how can addylin tell her friends? she only wanted to be normal like them
